Emerson Winters Company

THESE two cheery looking people comprise the Emerson Winters Company, advertised to appear here the sixth day of the Chautauqua. They are Mr. Emerson Winters and Alice Stire Winters. A Texas newspaper described them as "Winners." "They gave," this paper said, "the brightest, sprightliest, cheeriest, jolliest, laughiest and smilingest entertainment that has come down this section of the pike for many a day. But they are misnamed. There is nothing cold or frigid about them. They are as smiling as spring and as warm as summer."

REAL TRAGEDY IN BIRD LIFE

Story of Long Vigil Kept by Scarlet-Coated Songster for Missing Mate Is Full of Pathos.

In the annals of bird lore nothing can be found surpassing in pathos the story which comes from Tarleton, O. For many weeks, close to the home of the writer, early and late there could be heard the loud, clear call of a bird to his mate. With his scarlet coat in strong contrast with his surroundings, and his no less decided military bearing, he would perch on the topmost twig of a tall apple tree, and from his lofty vantage scan the little world around him with his eagle eye, hoping to glimpse the familiar form of his lost companion. His alert ear and eye catching no sight or sound of the absent loved one, he would pour out his soul in unavailing pleadings for her return. The little singer in his untiring song proclaimed the fact that he was waiting with a hopeful heart.

One morning, while in quest of the early worm, he chanced to light upon a bush that stood by a window opposite the window of another house only a few feet away, and, seeing his image reflected so vividly and so close to him, he flew joyously at the apparition, believing it to be his long-lost mate. His enthusiasm knew no bounds. Quick and hard were the blows struck with his horny beak and claws in his impotent wrath until nightfall, when he sank to rest. The next morning at early dawn he renewed his claxon call, and came back to renew the battle of the previous day with his delusive image. This little tragedy in the heart of the bird has been carried on for five months. His flaming coat is just as bright and his kindly bearing none the less striking, but a great change has come over the spirit of the bird. He gave no sign of the battle royal that has raged in his breast for weary days and weeks, but his song has fallen into silence.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Their Class.

"When Noah was building the ark his critics were all discouraging, weren't they?" "Yes, but they all belonged to the class that didn't know enough to come in out of the wet."

Great Musicians Loved Silence. Among musicians taciturnity has always been prevalent, both Beethoven and Mozart being renowned among their friends for their long periods of silent thought and their dislike to the "chatter" of general conversation. Even Chopin, whose music would lead one to suppose him fond of people, was said to "love silence even better than music," while Wagner, except when discussing musical matters, was silent even to the point of actual rudeness.

WAR! What Is It All About?

HAS the whole world gone stark mad over a very foolish and trivial question? Are swords rattling, cannon rumbling, mailed armor clashing just because Russia wanted to show her love for the little brother—Serbia? Tear aside the curtain of Europe's politics and see the grim and sinister game of chess that is being played. See upon what a slim, yet desperate, excuse the sacred lives of millions are being sacrificed. Read the history of the past one hundred years, as written by some of the greatest authorities the world has ever known, and learn the naked, shameful truth. Just to get you started as a Review of Reviews subscriber, we make you this extraordinary offer. We will give to you

FREE—"Europe at War"

A big book and over 300 pages, size 10 x 7 inches, handsomely and durably bound in cloth, containing the dramatic history of the great events leading up to the present time; over 50 important and timely special articles by experts on the different phases of the conflict; hundreds of graphic pictures, portraits, photographs, diagrams, specially drawn war maps, illuminating statistical records, copies of official documents and diplomatic messages exchanged between the powers—a clear, vivid, accurate, permanent, interesting and valuable record—a record which once seen you will not willingly be without. Europe's past and present are here dramatically pictured and presented. Hundreds of illustrations graphically tell their own stories. More fascinating than any romance, here is a history so vivid, so dramatic, so stirring, so fascinating, so realistic, so wonderfully presented, so thrillingly told that it leaves an indelible impression.

Waste No Food

Food Waste of About 700 Million Dollars.

"For partial immediate relief, every individual and community should consider earnestly the matter of food conservation and the limitation of waste. As a Nation we seem to have a disdain of economizing. In many homes there is a strong feeling that it is 'only decent' to provide more than will be eaten and that it is demeaning to reckon closely. The experts of the Department of Agriculture report to me that the dietary studies made by them point to an annual food waste of about $700,000,000. Of course, the waste in families of very limited means is slight, but in the families of moderate and ample means the waste is considerable. Even if the estimate were reduced by half, the waste would still be enormous.

"The food waste in the household, the experts assert, results in large measure from bad preparation and bad cooking, from improper care and handling, and, in well-to-do families, from serving an undue number of courses and an over-abundant supply and failing to save and utilize the food not consumed. As an instance of improper handling, it is discovered that in the preparation of potatoes 20 per cent of the edible portion in many cases is discarded."—SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE, March 3, 1917.

Food is Wasted

(a) When we eat more food than our bodies need for growth and repair and to supply energy for our work. Overeating tends to poor health and fat instead of brawn, makes us sluggish and indolent instead of energetic and resourceful. Eat enough and no more. Eat for physical and mental efficiency.

(b) When food is burned or spoiled in cooking. Improperly prepared or poorly seasoned food will be left on the table and probably wasted. Buy food wisely and then prepare it carefully.

(c) When too much food is prepared for a meal. Unserved portions are apt to be thrown into the garbage pail or allowed to spoil. Many housekeepers do not know how to use left-over foods to make appetizing dishes.

(d) When too much food is served at a meal. Uneaten portions are left on the plate and later thrown into the garbage pail. Learn to know the needs of your family, and serve each no more than you think he will want.

(e) When anything edible is allowed to go to the garbage pail or allowed to spoil for lack of proper handling.

(f) When food is handled carelessly. Buy clean food, keep it clean until used, be neat in all details of cooking and serving. This lessens waste and is a valuable health measure as well.

Feed Your Own Family First

Don't feed high-priced human food to hogs or chickens.

Don't send valuable food to the incinerator or the fertilizer heap.

Don't pour into the sewer nourishing food in the shape of milk, skim milk, sweet or sour soup, gravy, or melted fat, or water in which cereals or vegetables have been cooked.

Keep good food out of your garbage pail and kitchen sink.
